

To whom it may concern at the FCC-

Please allow the current regulations of the Wisconsin No-call list to remain. The current challenges that are being brought against it are part of the reason the law was initially put in place. Companies that I already do business with have many other mechanisms to alert me to other products they may offer besides calling me to tell me about it.

Please allow me to continue to eat my dinner in peace. In the week before the law went into effect I received over 10 telemarketing calls. Since then, I have received only one from someone wanting to sell me something.

If anything, please make the no-call laws stronger. I find it interesting that one of the exemptions from the Wisconsin list is for political groups. Leave it to the lawmakers to exempt themselves from having to obey laws that give the people they are representing peace and quiet. During the recent presidential election, we received 2+ calls per day even though we had already decided who we would vote for months before the election. Please consider requiring political groups to also follow the No-Call laws in Wisconsin and do not allow the laws in Wisconsin to be weakened.

Thank you-
Tim Walston